Midwinter
Midwinter is the day on the calendar when there is the least amount of daylight and the longest period of night. It is on this day when the balance between light and dark swings decidedly in favor of the dark. Inspired by this time of year the group exhibition MIDWINTER: Embrace The Darkness will highlight the work of artists who pull from the notion of darkness, not only in its absence of light, but in its references to that which is invisible, unknowable or ignored.

MIDWINTER reminds that we should not only celebrate what is made obvious by daylight, but also value the richness of the unknown and overlooked.

Artists include: Dana Carter, Joy Feasley, Roxane Hopper, Irena Knezevic, Isaac Resnikoff, Michael Robinson, Paul Swenbeck, and Craig Yu

Curated by: Justin Witte

Gallery Hours: Mon–Wed, Fri 9am–5pm, Thurs 9am–7pm, Sat 12pm–5pm
For More Info: www.colum.edu/DEPS
Contact: Justin Witte/jwitte@colum.edu/312-369-8177
Front Image: Roxane Hopper, Frost, Silver Gelatin Print, 2009